SEARCH NOW CENTERS IN SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 7.—The search for Clara Smith, wanted in connection with the fatal shooting here of Jake L. Hamon, republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, today centered at San Antonio, Texas, after County Commissioner Penny McRae, San Antonio newspaper man, had stated he had conversed with Miss Susan Smith near San Antonio last night.

The sudden shift of interest in the case to San Antonio followed announcement of two developments characterized as important by County Attorney Brown.

Gris Suit of Clothes.

The first was the delivery to Mr. Brown of a suit of clothing taken from the offices of Mr. Hamon. The suit was sent by Frank L. Ketch, business manager of the stain oil magnate. It was sent to Mr. Brown at a request of Mr. Brown, who was given the clothing. Mr. Brown wore at the time he was shot.

The second development was the announcement by Dr. E. Brown, that Dr. Peter Hudy, doctor of a private sanitarium where Mr. Hamon died, and who treated him from the time he was wounded, had informed him Miss Smith visited Mr. Hamon at the hospital the day after the shooting.

President-Elect Holds Many Conferences on League and Aides.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Dec. 7.—The league of nations and cabinet selection were talked over at Senator Harding and his advisers today in another series of conferences.

On the league issue Mr. Harding consulted representatives of the mild reservationists and irreconcilables, consulting first with Senator Spencer of Missouri, a mild reservationist, and later with Senator Johnson of California, leader of the irreconcilables.

Senator Kellogg, of Minnesota, and other mild reservationists were among those consulted during the day.

Mr. Harding avoided the crowds that gathered around his office and committee room at the capitol by remaining during the day at the residence of E. B. McLean and his during his visit here. McLean, one of his chief political advisers, Harry M. Daugherty, of Ohio, conferred in the senator's office at the capitol with senators and representatives. It is understood that possible cabinet selections were the principal topic at these conferences.

Senators of New Mexico, and former Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, also visited Mr. Harding. Senator Taft had spent the night at the McLean residence and his close association with the president-elect revived rumors that he was being considered for an important cabinet position.

Extension of "Liberal" Credit to be Given Immediate Consideration.

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Washington, Dec. 7.—Immediacy consideration by the senate of farm relief legislation was considered probable today with the report of a joint resolution by the agricultural committee, reviving the war finance corporation and directing the Federal Reserve board to permit extension of "liberal" credits to farmers.

Rep. John J. Quinn, chairman of the committee, announced that the bill, if passed, would give immediate action and committee members urged confidence that sufficient votes were in sight to insure its adoption.

Suspended May 10.

The war finance corporation had made total advances of $35,061,404 up to May 10, last, when its loan activities were suspended by the secretary of the treasury, according to an annual report made today. Repayments of $35,344,580 up to November 30, had left a balance outstanding of $11,726,824, the report showed.

"It is the only logical way," said R. K. Overton, head of the committee, of the producers. "All these people will be aided with more profit, simply by cutting wasteful methods. I am hoping we can achieve a central station in the near future. Other cities have milk cheaper than Janesville, and it has worked out in Wisconsin, making it difficult to sell to both farmer and dealer providing they work in close co-operation."

One Dublin dispatch declared there was no chance of a truce while Arthur Griffith and the MacNeill brothers, prominent Sinn Fein leaders, were kept in prison, while others took a view that the reaction of the Irish republican brotherhood were in control of the situation and would be able to prevent any settlement which did not recognize their full demands.

It is pretty generally conceded that conversations have not yet reached the stage of definite negotiations.

Action on Stock Pavilion—
Many Offers of Sites are Received.

Unless the members of the Rock county board of supervisors reinstate the county agricultural office at their January session, steps will be taken to vote them out of office at the spring election. Action to this effect was taken today by 75 representative cattle breeders of the county at a luncheon at the Myers hotel for the purpose of considering the erection of a stock sales pavilion here.

The pavilion proposal was voted upon favorably at a canvass of those interested in subscriptions being raised for more than $3,000 of stock in the Janesville Park association which has declared that it will give the land for the erection of a stock pavilion for this purpose. Plans and estimates call for a building to cost $17,000 with all expenses of $12,000 without comforts.

MAN'S Motion Applauded.

In the matter of the board of supervisors, the action to interview all supervisors through the 24 township chairmen of the county was unanimous. When Dr. Wayne A. Munn of this city made the motion after brief discussion favoring the plan, tremendous applause broke out and the matter was adjourned.

Immediately after the action regarding the supervisors, high praise was sounded for the Janesville Chamber of Commerce by County Agricultural Agent R. T. Glassco, who declared that in all his time of office he has been given unbounded support by the chamber and particularly since Dr. Holman, president of the chamber, has been elected to the board of directors. Dr. Holman has been a strong advocate of the war finance corporation and directing the Federal Reserve board to permit extension of "liberal" credits to farmers.

Dr. Holman's motion was applauded.

Holman Talks.

Prior to it, Mr. Holman had put once more before the farmers of the county the offer of the Chamber of Commerce to turn its every facility over to the farmer to better his condition and business, permitting him to organize his own department of his own men, independent of the officers of the chamber. He declared that such conditions that exist upon the board of trade of Chicago, where he said brokers buy and sell grain without ever seeing it at more profit than the farmer gets, can be halted if the city and the farmer cooperate. He said the same holds true of the cattle market.

The meeting accepted the offer of the Janesville Park association to place a stock pavilion on the fair grounds here. Plans call for the tearing down of the west half of the open barn and building a hexagonal structure, using the east half of the structure.

Cattle Owners Liquidated

During the past year, the report declared the corporation had made every effort to liquidate its outstanding undue hardship upon borrowers. At the beginning of the year, the amount of loans outstanding was $1,459,244, which was reduced through repayments to $793,656, with the total advanced on the date of the report.

The corporation listed its other advances as of November 30 as $5,268,377 to banks, bankers and trust companies all repaid; $52,928,210 to state and public bodies; $39,747,400 to public utilities; with $21,123,955 still outstanding; $28,14,674 to industrial corporations; with $948,881 still outstanding; and $25,211,500 on warehouse receipts all repaid.

DEFINITE POLICY IS NEED OF U.S.-PAYNE

Secretary of Interior Department Gives Annual Report.

Evansville
Mrs. L. F. Miller, Phone 200-J.
Correspondent.

for Associated Press.]

Washington, Dec. 7.—Need of a far sighted government policy with respect to many of the country's internal affairs is emphasized by the annual report of Secretary of the Interior Payne, which particularly the administration of activities in Alaska, in dealing with the Indian tribes, preservation of the national parks and forests, and action in handling the greatest reconstruction problems of creating a higher agricultural production.

While Mr. Payne criticised the uncertainty which he said surrounded many activities, he commented as a strong constructive step the action of congress in making possible the "winter survey" of the region between Boston and Washington with a view to the development of a uniform system of power generation and distribution. This investigation was made under the direction of the interior department will be completed and the committee's report given to the public about next June, the secretary said, adding that he believed it would deserve public confidence.

Transportation Industry.

On the subject of oil, the secretary said the principal problem was transportation and advocated the operation of a government owned steamship line in order to insure development of his territory's resources. Two lines now serve the region, but Mr. Payne said their services was not satisfactory. He suggested the consolidation as a means of improving the service but this apparently was impossible. The government railroad in Alaska to a total of 540 miles in length will be completed and in operation by next June. Payne reported he had added that it tapped out all mineral wealth.

In connection with Secretary Payne's discussion of Alaskan transportation, Gov. Riggs, the territorial executive, urged the establishment of a tonnage tax on shipping to and in the territory and the building up of the fund thus raised of "regular and reasonable service upon equitable rates and schedules." He advocated government appropriations for the construction of a scheme of wagon roads to serve all the wagon roads to the government owned rail lines.

All Service Slow.

The question of communication also is one in which little progress has been made and Gov. Riggs informed Mr. Payne it was necessary handicapping development of the rail is slow, being shipped freight or express and frequently in bad, damaged condition. The governor believes his is offset in a measure by the army cable and naval radio services which he said was being used disproportionately with the civilian.

The government report declares that intoxicating liquor is finding its way into Alaska from British Columbia in large quantities and "bootlegging seems to be increasing as private stocks of liquor are exhausted." The governor reported that legislation processes were becoming well along, adding to the menace which he said existed. He urged that provisions of the Volstead act with respect to the use of whiskey for medicinal purposes be extended to Alaska, claiming that "many lives have been saved" since it "was available" during the emergency of the pneumonia and influenza epidemics in the territory.

Farming Question Serious.

Of internal problems in the United States, Secretary Payne considers as one of greatest importance the question of reclamation as related to farmers. The secretary cited census figures showing that the rate of increase of population on farms was only one-fifth as great as that of the nation as a whole. He believed this forebore very dangerous conditions for the future.

"The difficulty," he continued, "is that people do not like to live alone, but prefer to live in towns and villages and enjoy the conveniences and comforts of modern life which are beyond the reach of a scattered population living on large farms. Can this be remedied by the ownership and the formation of neighborhood associations? Small farms bringing the people nearer together and in touch with each other, these farms may be the answer."

Secretary Payne advocated passage of the Simon "furnal home bill" which he said would give the interior department an opportunity to do much important work in regard to reclamation and other steps to aid the restoration of farming population through increased land ownership by those who work the land.

Reclamation Service Broad.

Along with the farm life question, the secretary took up the question of the reclamation service of his department. The interest in opportunities on the land, he said, has greatly decreased with the demobilization of the fighting forces. The department, although hampered by lack of funds, has been assembling a large amount of valuable information "which will be of use to the country in the future."

The government had spent to June 30 a total of $125,000,000 on reclamation projects, the secretary reported, and approximately 150,000 acres have been made available through the reclamation efforts of the government.

The secretary declared that the government should come forward with a comprehensive scheme of reclamation development to meet the "acute desire of thousands of landless men and women who have become a part of the movement "forward to the farm."

Citizenship for Indians.

Discussing the Indian question, Mr. Payne urged that it might be best to extend citizenship to all Indians and said their children should, where possible, be educated with the white children and "encouraged in every way to become a part and parcel of our national citizenship."

The policy of issuing fee patents to the Indians for their lands was strenuously opposed by the secretary, who declared that to continue "thus placing them in a position to sell it, is, in my judgment, fraught with the gravest dangers and will inevitably pauperize thousands." Mr. Payne urged that the Indians be re-educated and have become accustomed through long experience to dealing with the white people, they should not be permitted to deal with them on "even terms."

During the last fiscal year the general land office issued a total of 164,492 titles of Indian and other public land, an increase of approximately 4,500,000 over the previous year. More than 1,800,000 acres were patented in the year, an increase of 1,000,000 over 1919.

Opposes Standard Games.

Discussing the national park system, Mr. Payne said that a number of projects involving the use of national park lakes as storage places had been pressed, but that he had opposed them on the ground that it meant the establishment of a precedent that could eventually lead to the commercialization of the national parks.

"If this principle is recognized," he Still cherishing that he may be able to round out his administration with a concrete achievement, Mr. Wilson wants action by the present congress on the treaty and league of nations covenant. They believe that the treaty but the record of the democratic administration will thus have been completed.

Parks to Be Preserved.

The conflict over the demands of conservation and the preservation of certain wonder places involves constant vigilance. In my view their preservation is first importance. It should be a settled policy of the country, regardless of the question of the treaty, that the boundaries of congressional parks or monuments are definitely set apart so that they must be preserved in their integrity, forever free from any form of commercialization."

NEW SCHOOL TO BE BEST IN WISCONSIN

Plans Being Rushed for Start by March 1—Buy Two Motors.

The report of Supt. Frank Holt before the board of education meeting last night at the high school building showed that the plans are being rushed for the beginning of work on the new high school building as soon as possible which, it is believed, will be before March 1st. After the discussion of outline business Mr. Holt told of the visits which were made by Supt. J. M. Dorrons, Prin. George Bassford and himself recently to the high schools at Watertown, West Allis, Milwaukee and Madison. In addition, where they gained many new ideas and suggestions and noted many mistakes which will be avoided here.

New ideas were secured as to partitions between the boys' and girls' gymnasiums, the violin-ray in the school pool, location of Jackson's basket system of lockers for the gym, location of the manual training room, whether it should be in a separate building or not, the cafeteria, conservatory and many other things which will be included in the plans of the Janesville high school building to make it the finest in the state.

To Buy Motor.

A second-hand 25 horsepower motor will be purchased and installed in the high school building, but until the new building which has heretofore been circulated by a steam engine. When running on low pressure this has not proved satisfactory in a building which was originally intended for 1000 students, but now has 700 pupils. It was also given the authority to purchase a smaller motor for the Adams school which, it is believed, will be a big fuel saver.

On a motion of the teachers' committee that the Supt. E. B. Burnham be officially designated as clerk and purchasing agent instead of clerk and trustee officer, as the latter position is now filled by an assistant who handles this work. Clerk Burnham's salary is fixed at $300 yearly as clerk, and $1,200 yearly as purchasing agent. He has received in the last year $1,000 for his services. Supt. Holt was allowed $25 a month beginning Sept. 1, for his services in giving him time to go in his school work in conformity with the practice in other cities.

New Room at Garfield.

A small room, 16x4 or 5 feet was ordered built on the second floor of the Garfield school for use of the teachers who have no place for their wraps and supplies.

John W. Burnham, railroad engineer, was given the thanks of the board for the work which he has voluntarily done without compensation and at his own instigation in reducing the consumption of fuel in the schools by a simple list of rules in living which he has taught the janitors.

For the first time in the history of the school a class from the high school will graduate in February, and it was ordered that all expenses of commencement night be paid by the county.

The report of the finance committee was read and approved, as was the report of the trustee officer and the recommendations of the teachers' committee, including the discharge of a janitor, and reimbursement of several teachers for parts of their salary which was withheld for absence.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE IS MORE REGULAR

Only eight children have played "hooky" in the last month, according to the report of Miss Mary Enright, who since Oct. 12, has been investigating the truancy work, assisting S. C. Burnham, who has herefore done this work along with his other work as clerk of the board of education.

Miss Enright has perfected a system whereby a check is made each term among the absent members of the school. A report is made by the principals of the schools of the absent members. A card file of all pupils in the schools and their records has been compiled by Miss Enright, who immediately gets in touch with the parents of the absent child to find out whether or not it is with their consent that the child is absent. If this is true an excuse must follow with the result that the pupil is brought to justice and his attendance at school is watched to see that it does not occur again. In this way the attendance in the schools has been greatly improved and little irregular attendance is reported.

Since beginning the work, Miss Enright has attended four pupils who have reached or passed the age of 14 to attend the regular school, although by law they cannot be compelled to attend the day school, but must go to vocational school one day a week instead.

Miss Enright made 113 visits to homes during the month of November, according to the report to the board, and made 16 visits to school rooms to investigate the attendance of pupils. Two boys were sent to Waukesha, one being incorrigible. Eighty-two cases of irregular attendance were investigated. Twenty-seven pupils have been excused from attending school since September. Four are blind; three deaf mutes in health; three have physical defects; two are blind; two stay home for families; three pupils are sick with physician's certificates; and four children who could not attend on account of poverty were given attention by Associated Charities and are now in attendance.

"Do you really think you voted for the best interests of the Fourth ward when you voted for precincts?" he was asked.

"Yes," was the reply. "I talked with several and also got some legal advice. However, I would like to see more wards but before dividing up the Fourth I would like to be sure that we're going to fix up the Fifth and straighten out all lines to make all the ward boundaries clean cut."

He looked astonished. "The deuce you have," said he. "What are you going to play it with, if you don't mind my asking?"

"With an outfit of my own," I answered. "There's really no great hurry."

He frowned and quirked his lips. Drake looked rather like a handsome scoundrel and he had certain similar traits, also. His eyes were quick and shifty, and he had a nervous way of picking at things with his fingers as he talked. When I turned and walked up the dilated hotel stairs and was apt to stop at a very strong set of big, even teeth.

He grinned. "Well, if you choose to put it that way, such a thing could never happen, couldn't it? Besides, I'm not obliged to take these people to Kukla. It's 'way out of my course."

"If you fall to show up at Kukla pretty soon young Harry will be coming here to see what has happened," I answered. "Set them ashore wherever you damn please and come back here as soon as you like. But I warn you, Drake, that you are not going to steal my pearls without a scrap and that if you do for me it will be a hanging job for you."

He scowled at me for a moment, his thick mustache caught in his upper lip, then said:

"Oh, come now, what's the use of trying to bluff. You've got nothing to prove your claim nor could you afford to ever scrap up a shiny shell. And do you flatter yourself that you could stand off the lot of us? If you got nasty about it we'd have to defend ourselves, who could bluster more? Now, how reasonable. Many a man has missed his chance by trying to pig the whole thing. I'm willing to go in with you on half shares and these people won't mind sticking on here for a couple of weeks. Come now, what do you say?"

I shook my head. "Well, I am agreed. You might as well save your words for your main top sail. I'm not going to be held up for half my pile for fear of my ride. Try it on if you like and see what happens. That's all I can say and I turned on my heel and walked back to my bungalow leaving him there, growling and chowing at the rim of his mustache and darning things."

CHAPTER IX

The storm in our family circle seemed to have blown over and Alice was looking flushed and angry while Endy was stretching away with a series of yawns. She looked up as I entered and again I was struck by the peculiar expression of her eyes. The bishop inquiring anxiously what result of my interview with Alice told him that Alice was evidently determined to land them as soon as possible and hurry back to have a whack at the pearls, whether I liked it or not, but I made no mention of his threats. Then, as it was to be our last evening together, I suggested to Alice that we take a walk down the beach, to which she agreed.

We started off together in the troubling tropic twilight and coming to a sheltered cove seated ourselves, to watch the sunset. The sky was fading to pale lavender and the chromatic scale spread all the tones of the spectrum with what seemed to be a caressing pause on every note, until the violet having been read, there ensued a lingering pause on the purple which had induced me to alter the application of them. In fact I was of the opinion that she held me at bay, but when I reproached her for this, she told me that she herself would be fat at my age if she impeached my politeness. What she found most to criticize in me was that I was practically self-taught (and fairly) and willing self-taught to be educated and most unwilling to be educated and most unwilling to be self-educated. She implied that a college of sages with he of Somes in the chair and ably supported by Solomon, Socrates, Epicurus and Abraham Lincoln could not possibly have convinced me of error in a single case of error, nor could the progressive measures of the Spaniards acquisition have induced me to alter the application of them. In fact I was a stubborn fool and not always agreeable one.

answered. "The bishop will be sending me an outfit as soon as he lands and I'll stick on here and do a sentry-go. Besides, there is a patrol boat due to look in here any day to see how I'm getting on and as I've bought the concession I shall ask for protection until I get to work."

Endy wrinkled his low forehead precisely like a great ape, then smiled.

"That's good bluff, Kavanagh," said he, "but it doesn't go. In the first place don't believe you've got any enemies and you know as well as I do that the chance of a patrol boat putting into this rotten hole is about one in a thousand." A lot of things might happen before that little tube of yours arrived, but it's not probable that any boy who felt like having got the pearls would let him hindered much by one man with no papers or anything to prove his claim."

"In other words," I retorted, "you think I would be quite possible for you to buy your passengers and get the hero in time to 'lick the cream off the jug before my crowd showed up, and you think that my being here wouldn't matter particularly."

He grinned. "Well, if you choose to put it that way, such a thing could never happen, couldn't it? Besides, I'm not obliged to take these people to Kukla. It's 'way out of my course."

How to Knock a Tumbler Through

A Tumbler—This trick will arouse an immense amount of curiosity and surprise. But remember—never repeat it!

Sit on a chair behind a table, keep your audience in front. Place an empty tumbler upside down on the table. Cover the tumbler with a newspaper and press the paper down around the glass so that it takes the form of the glass.

Then draw a line on the edge of the paper, let the tumbler drop on your lap, quickly returning the paper to the center of the table. The stiffness of the paper will preserve the form of the tumbler.

Hold the paper with one hand and with the other strike it a heavy blow. At the same instant let another roll easily from your lap on the floor. It looks like you have positively knocked the tumbler through the table.

Smooth out the paper before anyone can examine. Once is enough for this trick.

I had practically no suffering and my baby was strong and healthy and has always been. The 'Prescription' has done wonders for me. I think it

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER XIV ROMANCE?

So Mark and I, sweethearts of 14 years ago, stood and stared at each other. I saw his too-red face, the rolls of fat under his jaw, his slack mouth, his small grizzled eyes. I saw the fat waistline, the flat chest, the stubby feet.

And he saw—an old woman. The once golden brown hair was colorless; the fresh skin sallow with the sallowness that years and neglect and general lack of interest can produce, he saw wrinkles around my eyes, my mouth sagged when I looked the never-seen anything new nor anything more from life. He saw me dressed in a plain brown muslin dress, cut in the queer basque affected by old ladies, with a hat that would have made a caricature of any woman. Fourteen years ago a girl today, how terribly old it would make me now only 35!

"Let's have some lemonade," he suggested.

I agreed. I did not particularly want the lemonade, which was sure to be sour. But it was something to do.

We walked over to the bowl and worked our way near enough to be handed a glass each. Mark swallowed three in succession, then ate four pieces of layer cake. Then, apparently feeling much better, he turned from the chattering crowd.

"I don't eat much," he commented as I put my plate with a half-finished piece of cake on it, back upon the table.

"You always did eat like a bird. I remember it now. He seemed pleased, as recalling his past. Look behind him, everyone had forgotten most of the folks here. You stick around near me and tell me who they are. Two wouldn't do to seem to forget people so."

That kept me near him for an hour or more. All went well, was at the function and among relatives from the country near by, so there

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON. Thompson, in Care of the "Gazette".

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Recently I proposed to a young lady with whom we have been keeping house nearly two years. We have had no quarrels during that time and up to the present date, I proposed to her several other times, but she would neither say "yes" or "no." I received a reply to my last proposal which I quote: "Your proposition deserves consideration without hesitation, I remain your, etc. C."

As she lives in another city I have not the chance to ask her what she means and so I am asking you.

From the girl's answer to your proposal, it is difficult to know what she does mean. She is probably accepting you and tried to be original in her method. ***

Dear Mrs. Thompson: There is a certain girl who is jealous and envies everything my friend and I have. She talks about us to other people and then tries to stay with us and get us to talk about them. We try to be as nice to her as possible and it makes us feel badly not to know what else to do. Every now and then we get shivers. It isn't pretty and then, after a few weeks later she will have just like it.

She makes her dresses like ours. I don't mind so much but she copies every lesson we write. What would you advise us to do? L. D.

When you know that the girl has been talking about you to other people, go to her and tell her that you do not like her methods of being a friend. It will be a good lesson for her to be called to time for talking behind your back. Do not let her copy your lessons. Tell her she has worked for your information, and you want her to work for hers.

RECIPES FOR DAY

Mother's Cream Cake—Break two eggs in cup and fill cup with sour cream. Turn into mixing bowl and add cup of sugar, one and one-half cups flour, which has been sifted with one level teaspoon of baking powder and one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-quarter teaspoon salt and bake in moderate oven for half hour. If you wish to vary the flavor use cinnamon instead of vanilla. This can be stirred up quickly and has a nice flavor.

Jugged Chicken—Separate a chicken into pieces at joints. Take two or three tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon each salt and pepper, mix together thoroughly. In this roll the chicken after dipping in an earthen pot or casserole. Cover the whole with sweet milk, adjust the cover and let baste until the chicken is tender. Anyone who eats chicken cooked in this way will agree with one of our friends who says "It tastes like chicken that one dreams about."

Stuffed Celery Salad—Mix cheese with cream, season with salt and pepper, cut up green pepper fine and add to cheese. Stuff celery and cut in pieces inch long. Serve with sliced olives on lettuce. One which is too high.

Drawn Butter Sauce—One-third cup butter, three tablespoons flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper, one and one-half cups hot water.

Melt half the butter; add flour mixed with seasoning and then hot water gradually. Boil five minutes and add remaining butter in small pieces.

Egg Sauce—Add two hard-boiled eggs cut in slices to drawn butter, or add beaten yolks of two eggs and a little lemon juice to drawn butter.

Pimento Sauce—Two cups tomatoes, one cup water, one slice onion, cloves, three tablespoons butter, three tablespoons flour, one-half tablespoon sugar, salt and pepper.

Cook tomatoes, water, onion, three cloves and sugar together for twenty minutes. Next butter and flour and stir into the mixture. Add three-quarters teaspoon salt and a dash of pepper; cook ten minutes and strain.

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye worn, shabby skirts, waists, dresses, coats, gloves, stockings, sweaters, draperies, everything, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods, new, old, faded colors. was a large crowd. The room was almost hot, and the Japanese lanterns swinging from the lines of electric lights only seemed to make the heat worse. The noise of talk and laughter was much too big for the comparatively small hall. I have noticed since that the larger the place, the more musical does the buzz of human conversation become. A thousand people under one roof produce a sound like the drone of a gigantic bee. But a hundred or so are not nearly as noisy as that.

Finally Esther and Vi came up, and Vi was introduced.

"Well, I wouldn't have known you," Mark said to her as he said to us before. "When I left here you were a baby, and now look! A regular young lady, grown up. I'll bet you have a lot of beans."

"A lot of notions," Esther grumbled, but good naturally.

Vi turned pink, and looked anything but pleased at the awkward compliment. I knew how annoyed she really was, but I thought it was love with one man so strong that she cannot see any others.

Then, "Times flies," Mark observed, though he originated that remark, "I guess we're getting on, Enid again?"

So there it was again! I had it from my sister-in-law, in her out-spoken comments on my looks and age. I had it from my brother more or less indirectly. I had it from Laura, spitefully. And now my old sweet heart was conning me over my age.

Finally the party broke up and started home. The family were ready to walk; the school was far away from our house. Laura and Charlie started off ahead of us, and Eddie was saying a last good-bye and assembling our guests when Mark came up.

"Room for one in my clivver," he said, and took my arm to help me in.

He drove along the village streets slowly.

"Used to go buggy riding in the old days," he said. "Got a car now—things are better these days. Got a nice house too, better'n the one I used to have here. Got a good business too."

I wondered why he should tell me this. But I was interested.

"Xep used to drive in a buggy, got a car now," he repeated. "Want to come for a ride with me day after tomorrow."

"Why, yes—unless Esther needs me, I help. I suppose I'll be all right then, you go."

His tones were crisp and curt, like those of a new, over-industrious grocery clerk. Mark had been a grocery clerk so I heard.

"We arrived at the house. Mark stopped his car, and sat waiting.

"See you day after tomorrow," he said and drove off.

So after 14 years, a man had asked me to drive with him! And it was the same man, the one who had been so devoted, so afterward so easily discarded, in such distant days.

I thought not—and somewhat depressed, I turned from the gate and walked up to the porch.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR JOE:

I was wrong about Nora the new nursegirl. My first impression of her was that she was a girl with a fair amount of equilibrium and not one of these girls that trip over everything within reach, especially their own feet. But I misjudged her character, Joe. She's a tripper.

She not only trips over everything in sight, Joe, but she cold-bloodedly goes out of her way to trip over things. This morning she tripped over a rug and when she went to straighten it she tripped over it again. If that's not the height of tripping, Joe, what is?

"For goodness sake, Nora," I says, "watch out where you're tripping." I says. "The rug's right there in plain sight and it's certainly big enough to cover your naked eye. It couldn't be any bigger and still remain a rug," I says. "Didn't you see it?" I says.

"Yes, I saw it," she says, "but my feet ain't very sensitive to rugs."

Can you imagine that, Joe? I forgot to mention that all the time she was tripping over the rug coming and going she had the baby in her arms. Of course, I don't want to pamper the child and make a dolly-lop of him, but I don't see how I can keep a nursegirl that's all the time tripping with him. They say a baby can stand a surprising amount of bumps without anything radical happening, but even so the wear and tear on a mother's feelings must be considered, and not being a mother yourself, Joe, you'll never know what sensations a mother goes through when she sees her only child being tripped with.

To give Nora credit, though I must say that for all the times she's tripped so far she's never once lost her grip on Baby or forgotten her balance to such an extent as to actually fall. As she says herself, she may be a tripper but she was never a faller.

What would you advise, Joe?

I'm so glad you're going to take my advice about giving me a sealskin scarf for Xmas. Of course, knowing already what it's going to be, there won't be any element of surprise about the actual present itself, so Joe I guess it's up to you to furnish the surprise by sending me an even handsomer scarf than I expect. Lovingly,

WRAP FOR AFTER THE DINNER HOUR

VOCATIONAL SCHOOL FOR WOMEN HAS LONG WAITING LIST

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON, MASS.—The foresight of John Simmons, a Boston merchant who died 50 years ago, in providing in his will for the founding of a vocational college for women is declared by officials of John Simmons College to have been amply demonstrated. The foundation, which now has a long waiting list of students seeking entrance and an equally long list of employers waiting for its graduates, in connection with the fiftieth anniversary of John Simmons' bequest, the college has just started a campaign for an enlarged endowment fund.

Simmons' college was not formally opened until 1902.

In 1858, a college official says, "it has outgrown the resources which its founder provided, and now it is in need of additional funds, which the country very much needs."

With very little schooling and typically a self-made man, John Simmons was known chiefly as the originator in New England of ready-made clothing. He was a man of few words and he held little about his plan of founding a college. It is known, however, that in a period when women were supposed to have no vocation outside the home except teaching he held the view that the capacity of women to profit by training was limited only by their opportunities.

The conditions which followed the civil war re-enforced his view. He saw many daughters, wives and mothers forced by the death of men in the war to accept miserably paid and often menial work, and he realized that this was largely because they were totally untrained and could do no other thing well.

Simmons believed in the importance of vocational training for women. Whether a woman marries or does not, he held, a first-rate training for earning her livelihood is her best insurance against poverty.

Until she marries she can be self-supporting, and if after marriage, because of death, sickness, or calamity in her family she is compelled to return to work, she will be ready to meet the emergency.

John Simmons' college, in addition to its courses directly designed to train women to be experts in science, business, social work, librarianship, household management, and other professions, in which its opening for women is required, it is open to women who are interested in science.

When you spoil a baking of bread?

Of course you can feed it to the chickens—if you have them—but it's pretty expensive chicken feed.

Besides the flour, there are the yeast, salt, sugar, milk, shortening—to say nothing of the gas or fuel used in baking and the cook's time—as well as the temperature of your family.

All gone—into the garbage pail or elsewhere, unless you shut your eyes and swallow the stuff.

And then you commit slow murder on your digestion!

Interclass Basketball Starts at High School Today

By George McManus.

JUNIORS TO MEET FROSH TODAY IN HIGH SCHOOL GYM

Play starts this afternoon in the annual interclass basketball clashes of the high school. At 4:15, the freshmen and the juniors meet in the school gym to decide which team will meet the winner of the sophomore-senior game which comes Wednesday afternoon.

By the process of elimination, the team that remains undefeated the Thursday afternoon will play the faculty in the high school Friday afternoon. All games are at 4:15.

Have Juniors Edge?

Advantage in this afternoon's battle appears to be with the juniors. They are captained by Gridley and have Crowley, Black and Wolden in their lineups. Seniors made the freshman think men have not had the experience of the others.

This does not mean that there is not going to be a fight. All class teams have been practicing hard for a week and are in shape to show it.

First call for squad practice for the regular high school team will be made Friday of this week. It is expected that something like 50 athletes will be out for the team. Schedule of the school will be announced tomorrow.

MILTON FIVE PLAYS AT RIPPON TONIGHT

Milton, Dec. 7.—The Milton college basketball team will meet its first test of the season tonight when the Blue and Brown quintet faces the fast Ripon college five at Ripon.

The following players, in charge of Prof. D. N. Inglis, will make up the team:

Captain, John Peiper; Captains,

John Kaukuse, Sayre, Curtis,

Oakley, Ferrell, Hempell, and Dalancey.

Although the basketball schedule has not yet been completed, games with Marquette University, Whitewater Normal, Milwaukee School of probably certain.

Fort Atkinson.—In the football con-esic victory was largely due to the play of Norman Kurtz and Stanley Muschell. Kurtz scored six of his team's points when he intercepted a forward pass and ran 35 yards for a touchdown. Muschell and Kurtz could always be depended on to make from 3 to 5 yards through the line and he played a great defensive game.

RIFLE CLUB HAS NEW RANGE; ONE OF STATE'S BEST

First tryout of the new shooting gallery of the Janesville Rifle club will be held Wednesday night. The outfit is located in the cellar of the building on North Main street, in which the East Side Odd Fellows hall is situated.

The gallery is considered to be one of the finest in Wisconsin. It was constructed by experts who are members of the club and contains the latest devices gathered from a study of targets in this and other states.

No Human Near Targets.

The special provision is that no human is within 50 feet of the targets while the shooting is going on. There are six targets in all, so arranged that each is entirely separate from the other.

The gallery itself gives a range of 50 feet to the targets. In its mechanical construction, it is made in a single firm of beaver board. The targets are set into holders at the shooting stand and by means of a trolley and wheel are run back until they are flush with a white back wall behind, which is a sheet of glass on a slant of three inches. The bullet glance, high powered electric lights throw sufficient illumination upon the paper targets to make them perfectly visible. The rest of the cellar is darkened.

Set in Black Lanes.

So that the rifleman may not be disturbed by the light in targets on either side of him, each target is shut off from the other by a lane of black cloth. The shooter has a specially made wooden resting place upon which is a mattress from which to fire. These are arranged in a slant to make for perfect shooting.

To protect the gun, it is built that it eliminates all danger from the ordinary range of men being posted at the targets to turn them. Under the new system, when all 20 shots have been fired, the target is pulled out over the tunnel and a new one made ready. The target man, the range master, is doing his best to attend to make for perfect shooting.

Fletchers Leave in Spring.

The two Fletchers, Bob and Ralph, both of whom played three years and won football, joined Ems, graduate next spring, as all Ems, the third tailback. Bob Fletcher has earned called one of the headiest conference quarterbacks in years and is the star of the Indiana team.

Their coach, Jim Madson, last night, looked on with amazement when Gaston Chevrolet, since killed in an American made car designed and built by his brother, Louis, was the first to nod an assent to the checkered flag as he thundered under the wire, a winner with 125,000 watching spectators looking on.

It was the first time since 1912 when Joe Dawson, in a National, drove in first, that a Yankee made car with an American citizen at the helm returned a winner. It was a bitter pill for a motor builder from across the sea to swallow.

Bob Korn, last year's captain, who finished his place in the line to a better man, will finish next spring.

Larimer, Middleton and Howard, other substitutes, will be missing next year.

The losses from this year's team, however, were not so great as to mold another team next year, according to Fletcher.

Carney Still Suffering.

Charles Carney, the receiving end of the brilliant Walquist-Carney aerial combination, is in bad shape from the Buckeye game. The right arm is still sore, so far as he can tell, but he will have the full use of his leg for some time. There is much speculation as to whether he will be able to play basketball, in which he starred last year.

Available regulars for next year are ends, Carney and Holloman; tackle, Olander; guards, Dunn and Mohr; backs, Walquist, Cragg and Feden.

Omaha, Neb.—W. A. Rourke, owner of the Omaha West End Club, announced today the sale of the club to the Faran Bureau of Houston, Tex. The sale price was $100,000. Durch will take charge Jan. 1.
